

Shockingly, You've Been Wearing Shoes Wrong This Whole Time

Greg wasn't a very active person, but he did take public transport to get around his city, which usually meant walking at least a mile or two every day. Even though he kept reading about how good walking is for his body, he never felt it. Instead, his feet would often hurt, especially the lower part of his heels. In no time, he started suffering from Plantar Fasciitis and arch pain, which made walking painful. But it didn't need to be.

Turns out that walking wasn't the problem; it was the shoes he was wearing. More specifically, his insoles just didn't give his feet the support he needed to protect his heels and his arches from aching. Not only did the insoles not support his arches and his heels, but they wouldn't correct his posture either. And without a proper posture, he also started to experience severe back pain and reduced mobility.

It's possible that we've all felt like Greg at some point, with our feet aching despite wearing some of the most comfortable shoes on the market. People suffering from plantar fasciitis, arch pain, and heels spur especially complain about their shoes being uncomfortable. And the reason why those shoes are uncomfortable is that they don't have an insole specifically designed to support your heels. An insole like FLXSO.

FLXSO insoles feature an innovative design that specifically targets various parts of the individual's feet that can contribute to aches and pains. With their innovative design, the soles stay relatively slim while still offering plenty of shock absorption. The unique padding cushions the blow every time you take a step. That can help reduce a lot of the pain you can feel in your arches and the Achilles Tendons.

Along with giving your feet the support they need to avoid aches in the future, it also supports better alignment of your knees, heels, and feet. This better alignment helps improve your posture and better deal with the issues that come with it.

FLXSO is made from a range of premium materials that ensures durability and longevity. So once you buy these insoles, you can take every other step with confidence, knowing that they will last. The best thing about getting these insoles is that their effects become apparent mere moments after you put them on. Granted, it won't completely heal the pain, but walking won't feel as miserable as it once did.

Even Greg would eventually find FLXSO and would start wearing them to surprising results. Not only did his feet feel better with each step he took, but he didn't get tired as quickly, and nor did his feet hurt as much. If you want to wave your general feet and aches goodbye, take a step in the right direction with FLXSO.
